For each specified destination currency the user has the option to select monthly average. The system will automatically create a monthly average entry for each source/destination combination and will create that entry for the monthly average rate type.

For each specified destination currency the user has the option to select EOM. The system will automatically create an end-of-month entry for each source/destination combination using the rate from the source/destination combination from the last day of the month and copying it to the EOM rate type specified.
